

Research Computing Seminar Series 2008-9

Space Weather and the Colonization of Mars

Roger Dube

Professor
Center for Imaging Science

Severe space weather storms create inconveniences when they strike the Earth – RF communications failures, disruptions in the power grid, and dropped cellular transmissions. But for planned Lunar and Mars colonies, these storms are life-threatening. Find out why and what NASA and RIT are planning to do about it!

3:30 pm Thursday, Mar 19, 2009
IT Collaboratory Bldg. 17-3110